2069 ACP...
AFTER COMMON PIZZA

DELIVERY MANUAL

Materials Needed
1 piece of paper
1 writing utensil
1d4 (looks like pizza)
GM+1-3 players

Every delivery must be completed within 30 real life minutes. Like literally get a stopwatch and set it to 30 minutes. When the delivery begins, start the timer. If the time runs out and you haven’t finished the delivery, may the Pizza Barons have mercy on your soul.

Look at the map [on back of menu]. Each delivery has four legs, and each leg has three obstacles you need to get through. Whenever you try to overcome an obstacle or challenge you could reasonably fail (Domino’s Master’s discretion) roll 1d4 (cause it looks like pizza kind of). 1 is a slice loser, 2-3 you just scrape by, and 4 is an incredible success - get a slice back (explain how!)

The Pizza has 8 slices. Whenever catastrophe strikes, you will lose a slice. Lose all 8 slices and you’ll be court-martialled by the Pizza Barons. You don’t want that to happen. As long as even one slice makes it to the customer, you’re good! At Dominoes, it’s about “quality” - not quantity.

The year: 2069. The Place: somewhere in the Fallen States of America. The pizza: Domino’s.

You are pizza delivery drivers, tasked with moving “hot, delicious, and affordable pizza” made by the fine people at the Domino’s Pizza Corporation from their world-class industrial pizza ovens to hungry and highly-valued customers around the world.

But it won’t be that easy. In this sick and twisted reality any number of starving freaks want those tasty pies, and you have to make sure they don’t get them.

LEG 1

TENT TUNNEL

Underground tunnel that has been taken over by starving freaks. It’s a shortcut, but is littered with garbage fires, hobo hammocks, crossbow-rigged traps, and fierce, unhinged raccoons. Use at your own risk.

AMAZON ROW

A stretch of highway lined with Amazon warehouses with no other amenities nearby. Amazon workers working 12 hour days with 15 minute lunch breaks hide in the ditches ready to accost a food delivery car to snag their lunch.

LEG 2

GARBAGE RIVER

There’s a drawbridge left over from the early 2000s that still draws up twice a day, stopping the flow of traffic. If the tide is in, the garbage choking the riverway will be level with the road. Do you wait for the bridge to come back down or risk driving across the thick layer of trash? Also, starving freaks come here a lot to gather drinking water and discarded clothes for burning.

‘PIZZA 4 ALL’ PROTEST

Hordes of socialist freaks have taken over busy intersections, demanding healthcare, free speech, and other useless things. Do you wait in traffic and blast your horn, drive through them, or cut down the sidewalk?

LEG 3

THE MALL

Alluring, enticing. There’s a sale! Crocs are 80% off today only! Glasses that read your horoscope exist and are ALSO ON SALE! Use your brain implant points to get a discount! Sweaters made from brand new plastic bottles are BUY ONE GET ONE FREE!! SALE SALE SALE!

BAD COP, BAD COP

COPS R HERE. There’s a blockade of cop cars, full of cops earning $450,000 of taxpayer money per year for doing nothing more than playing out their highschool bully fantasies. They are bad guys, ready to assault anything that moves.

LEG 4

THE ZOO

The last of earth’s wildlife is sequestered in this Zoo by Walmart™. Their flimsy cages are always breaking open and there aren’t enough zoo workers to catch these creatures from escaping in time. Maybe you’ll be fine, but maybe a hungry chimpanzee or an aggressive seagull is waiting nearby, ready to jump on that hot, delicious pizza.

TOXIC SPILL

Dangit, one of the highway exits is blocked off after a tesla semi-truck malfunctioned and biohazard sludge spilled out of the tank. It’s EVERYWHERE and it’s gross af. The biohazard workers haven’t had a break all day, and they can’t access their government-approved granola bar through their biohazard suit. They r hungry!
